

Daniel Shultz

www.daniel-shultz.com

dshultz@mica.edu

Hi! My name is Daniel. I'm a graphic designer who loves freshly mowed lawns and puppy kisses.

I specialize in publication, web, and app design, as well as 3D illustrations and motion graphics. I also create electronic music and sound fx for clients ranging from video game artists to female rappers. As far as my personal work goes, I enjoy finding situations within suburban culture that can be skewed in a satirical way, and use that to ground my narrative and overall visual approach. I'm also a good neighbor.

Cute Door Singles

Album cover designs for singles released by suburban pop artist Cute Door.

Sunday Morning

Personal series exploring underlying and complex emotions tied to suburban culture.

uDog

iPhone app that allows the user full customization of digitally rendered dog collars. Collars are able to be shared publicly with the world, allowing other users to view and favorite them.

Watch

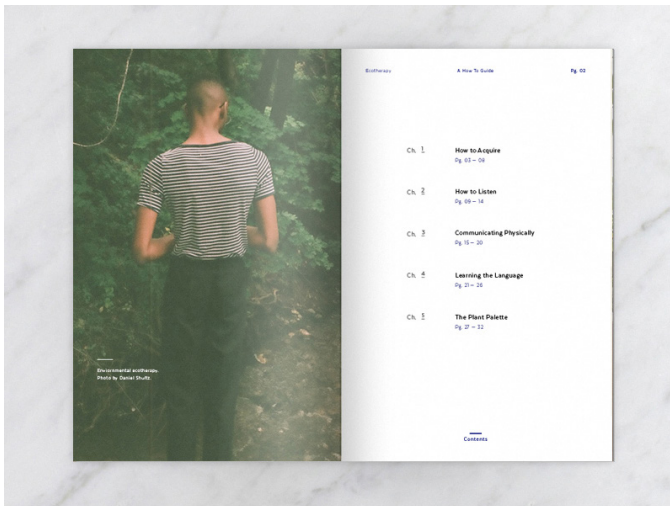

Here & On

Shop that helps humans connect with extraterrestrials effortlessly through the use of metaphysical products.

Water Me Please

Company that donates plants to college students struggling with anxiety and depression.

Ecotherapy: A How To Guide

A satirical self help guide on how plants are able to improve one's health. Delicate imagery and attentive design contrast the sarcastic mood of the texts that make up the book.

Cute Door

Personal project that explores humorous and taboo aspects of suburban culture.

Listen

Caffeine

OST for a video game about coffee, making coffee, making friends, and mystical adventures.

Listen

Bbymutha

Song production for female rap artist.

Listen

Bliss

Personal project that meshes dreamy ambient synths with discernible pop-inspired beats.

Listen